HDPE waste recycling

Waste recycling of residual materials is a major societal issue. However, a big part of the content in recycling bins used for industrial and residential waste constitute a source of extremely durable materials who, once recycled, can be transformed in environment-friendly products.

Soleno Recycling recycles and processes the polyethylene coming from domestic and industrial usage. In partnership with a social economic company, Soleno Recycling allows people with functional disabilities to enter the labour market. The materials that result from this process is mainly reused in the solutions manufactured by Soleno.

Environmental awareness is at the heart of Soleno's philosophy. This is why we have chosen to use our resources in a responsible manner to contribute to the development of future generations.

From the sorting center to the finished product

Soleno Recycling is fully devoted to reduce HDPE waste.

This raw material is then trucked to Soleno's manufacturing plants. The material is then transformed into useful pipes with very long life spans. These products allow the capture and conveyance of storm water, while complying with the principles of sustainable development in the implementation of storm water infrastructure.

Your resource for the treatment of your HDPE waste

Soleno Recycling allows the revitalizing of your postconsumer and postindustrial HDPE waste. As well as the recycler and end-user of the product, Soleno is able to confer HDPE with an infinite life cycle.

An important player in the HDPE recycling industry

Soleno disposes of an exceptional logistics service ready to answer all of your needs. Because we deliver our finished products all over the northeastern of North America, our fleet can therefore collect your HDPE waste. We take care of the handling of your waste and our trucks do not run empty trips.
